2. It takes His hand to turn the seasons,
To give the sun and snow their hour,
And in this plan we learn His reason,
His nature and eternal power.

3. It took His hands to carry sorrow,
For every sin that we have done.
And on a cross He bought tomorrow,
A world of good, like He'd begun.

4. And in His hands there is perfection,
That in this land we only taste.
For now we see a poor reflection,
Then we shall see Him face to face.
